

George Martin Sirait, Ph.D.

George Martin Sirait, Ph.D is a fulltime lecturer in Department of Business Administration. He holds a Ph.D in Southeast Asian Studies from University of Sydney (Australia) and Master in Regional Economic and Social Development from University of Massachusetts Lowell (USA) by researching labour and industrial relations in Indonesia. His Bachelor in Philosophy was received from Parahyangan University (Bandung).

His research interest falls in the intersection between labour relations in multinational corporations, global value chains and social-economic development of regions, particularly Southeast Asia. Among others, he teaches labour relations, public policy analysis, and understanding multiculturalism in business.

In addition to teaching and research, he has undertaken professional consultancies in social-economic development and/or labour-related issues, such as for UN agencies (ILO, UNICEF), international NGOs, and multinational companies.

